- + The city of Cleveland was named for land surveyor Moses Cleaveland. In the 1830's the "a" in Cleaveland was dropped because it fit better on a newspaper masthead.

- From Mental Floss

- + After surveying property along the New Hampshire and Maine border, some engineers decided the boundaries needed to be changed. So they stopped to tell a farmer that he was no longer in Maine but in New Hampshire. "Good," said the farmer. "I couldn't take another one of those Maine winters."
